An Enjoyable Time Which is Shared in by
Friends of the Association.

The Literary Society of the Young Men's Christian Association held its first annual banquet Wednesday evening. Forty persons, including members of the club and their guests, were present. Mr. L. W. Moon, president, presided, and at the conclusion of the banquet selected Dr. F. C. Heath as toastmaster. President L. H. Dunning and State Secretary E. E. Stacy spoke of the association, its departments, and what it does for young men. Mr. J. R. Bloom, general secretary, spoke on "A Prophecy of the Future"—how the Young Men's Christian Association was one of the means by which the world is being constantly advanced. Assistant Secretary Joseph Ches made a happy toast to the lady friends of the club who were present. The following toasts were responded to by the members of the club: "Christian Culture," A. R. Harold; "Our Literary Club," A. W. Morris; "The Chinese—Should They be Excluded from the United States?" J. Y. Scott; "Should the World's Fair be Open on Sunday?" J. J. Elder; "Should the Negro be Colonized?" L. M. Adkinson; "Is the World Growing Better or Worse?" Mr. Hase; "Capital Punishment," A. W. Ches; "The Unknown Heroes," S. C. Gilman; "The Coming Statesman," C. J. Buchanan; "The Christian Scholar," Edward Colmore; "Our Feast," A. M. Potts. This was the last of the meetings of the club until the first week in September.

A DEMOCRATIC OUTRAGE.

Pictures of President Harrison Demolished by
1 Parolan Democrats in North Indianapolis.

The citizens of North Indianapolis have been treated recently to some remarkable exhibitions of partisan malignity. Immediately after the renomination of President Harrison several of the Republicans of that thriving town placed large pictures of him in the doors and windows of their houses. This proved too much for some of the bitter Democrats, and they proceeded to vent their spite by demolishing the obnoxious pictures. This was done by hurling large stones through the glass doors and windows in which the pictures were placed. The front door of Mr. George Richardson's house was thus smashed; also, a glass side-door at Andy Gall's house, a window at Arthur Cobb's house and one at Emmett Tyler's house. All these outrages have been committed at night. At Mr. Gall's the large stone that was thrown through the glass door struck a chair in which one of the female members of the family was sitting, and Mrs. Gall fainted through fright. Many Republicans in North Indianapolis who had placed Harrison pictures in their windows have taken them down, not caring to invite a Democratic assault. Not a Cleveland picture in the town has been molested, and the Republicans are unanimous in declaring that there must not be any attempt to retaliate. They are fighting mad, though, all the same.

RESIGNATION WITHDRAWN.

Mr. Scott Butler Yields to the Importunities of His Friends and Will Continue at Butler.

At the urgent request of A. M. Atkinson, president of the board of directors of Butler University, and at the solicitation of the committee on faculty and schools, Scott Butler has withdrawn his resignation as president of the faculty of the institution and will continue to discharge the duties of the office. This will be gladly heard by the friends of the college and the community, who appreciate the successful efforts of the president.

LITZENBERG MAY ESCAPE

The Nephew of the Late Thomas A. Hendricks Is Likely to Get His Freedom.

There Seems to Be a Technical Flaw in His Extradition—Story of the Crime for
Which He Was Arrested in Chicago.

PECULIAR TECHNICALITY.

Nephew of the Late Thomas A. Hendricks
Will Probably Get Out of Jail.

Thomas H. Litzenberg, now in jail at Chicago, will be remembered as having been at one time a resident of this city, and of such prominence as to receive the nomination for county auditor on the Democratic ticket over James A. Remban, Dora Johnson and others. Litzenberg was, however, defeated at the election, Justice C. Adams beating him by a good majority. He was, while here, a trusted employee of the First National Bank, his position in society, business and politics being based upon the fact that he is a nephew of the late Vice-president Thomas A. Hendricks. There is now a good prospect that Litzenberg will escape on a technicality. His arrest for burglary in July, 1891, created more of a sensation here than in Chicago, where the crime was committed. His attorney has made a motion for Litzenberg's discharge on the ground of illegal extradition. The case has been taken under advisement and the prisoner's chances of release seem good.

The crime for which Litzenberg was arrested was committed July 21, 1891, at the residence of Edward G. Huling, No. 589 Grand boulevard. Huling discovered Litzenberg in his house about 7 o'clock in the evening. The latter, when cornered, opened fire, which was returned by W. C. Huling. The latter claims that he shot Litzenberg in the thigh, and that he was in the hospital several weeks. At any rate the young man was arrested and indicted for burglary and assault with a deadly weapon.

Mrs. Hendricks, widow of the Vice-president, came to her nephew's aid, and the services of a law firm were secured for $1,000. This firm got bondmen for Litzenberg and he jumped his bond by flying to Canada. It was then discovered that his bond was worthless. Litzenberg was arrested in Canada and brought to Chicago, where he has lain in jail ever since.

Mrs. Hendricks still sticks to her wayward nephew and has employed counsel for him. The attorney now demands his release, and provided Judge Collins decides against him, he will bring habeas corpus proceedings before the United States Court. The offense for which Litzenberg was extradited is burglary, and the indictment found here charges burglary. The trouble seems to be that the burglary known to the treaty is the common law burglary. This is essentially different from the burglary known to the statutes of the State of Illinois. As a matter of law Litzenberg cannot be tried for any crime except the one for which he was extradited. The claim is that the indictment does not charge a single crime known to the treaty or even to the laws of the kingdom. The question was taken under advisement by Judge Collins and will be decided in a few days.

A SMOOTH SWINDLER.

He Works the When Store and District Messenger Company for Two Suits of Clothes.

A youthful-looking, smooth-faced man entered the When store yesterday, and purchased two suits of clothes at a cost of $44.50, being waited upon by T. F. Bond, one of the clerks. The buyer gave the name of C. Chase, and said he had a room in the Hubbard Block, corner of Meridian and Washington streets, to which he desired the goods sent, subject to inspection there, and to be paid for on delivery. This was agreeable for so profitable a customer, and, according to the custom of the When store, Mr. Bond rang for a district messenger boy, John Dunn, who lives at No. 76 Benton street, and is about fourteen years of age, and asked him to answer the call. He did so, and secured the package for Mr. Chase, and also one for Mr. W. C. Wormer, No. 518 North Delaware street, and was on his way back to the messenger office to report when a young man stopped him on the corner of Washington and Pennsylvania streets and asked:

"Have you a bundle for Mr. Chase?"
"Yes," he replied.
"Well, I am Mr. Chase," said the stranger.
"Give me the bundle and I will take it to my room. Come along and I will pay you there."

"I must report to the office first," said the messenger.
"Well, my room is just opposite your office, so come along."

The messenger followed along and went into the Hubbard Block. Mr. Chase, approached Room 12, drawing a lot of keys from his pocket as he did so. He also had a roll of bills in his hand. He stopped at the door and began to count over the bills, then handed young Dunn a dollar and said:

"Here, take this dollar and go get me a half dollar's worth of cigars. I find I have not the half dollar necessary to make the exact amount. I will hold your package while you are gone."

The apparent sincerity of the stranger was enough to deceive an older man, and the messenger left with the money. When he returned with the cigars and change, Mr. Chase and the two bundles had disappeared. He has not since been seen. The police were notified, and Chief Spahn took hold of the case. The loss of the goods falls upon the District Messenger Company. The swindle has some features of novelty, and was easily worked.
